

Guidelines for the Portfolio Reflective Essay

Your essay requires you to reflect on your professional development in relation to your progress through the musculoskeletal medicine units, linked to the Level 11/masters level learning outcomes as listed in the Module Descriptor on page 5.

Through your reflective essay you are aiming to demonstrate your achievement of each of the learning outcomes. You will need to provide evidence of their achievement, which should be attached and referred to as separate appendices.

Examples of this evidence include case studies submitted previously, or a short series of case reports, demonstrating your clinical reasoning in diagnosis and treatment, supported by critically appraised relevant literature. (Please refer to Guidelines for Case Reports on page 23)

Copies of evidence, such as feedback from in-service training sessions, letters communicating with other members of the multidisciplinary team etc are acceptable. We recommend that you do not enclose any important original information, as your essay will not be returned to you.

Patient confidentiality is an important issue. Before you start writing your essay, please consult the section on 'Confidentiality' on page 20.

When you are ready to write your essay, have a look at the marking criteria on page 35. You will see that most of them begin with the wording 'Provides and reflects on documentary evidence of...'. It might help you to use the individual marking criteria, or the learning outcomes themselves, as headings to help you to focus on what's required.

Ask yourself:

- What evidence have I got for achieving that learning outcome/marketing criterion?
- How can I convince the reader that I have satisfied that learning outcome/criterion by reflecting on and cross referring to that evidence?

Make an explicit link between the learning outcome you are trying to support and the evidence you are providing for that. You may use the same evidence to support more than one learning outcome/criterion.

Within your introduction to the essay you should include a short mention of what is meant by 'reflection', supported by one or two relevant references.

For the first criterion you might like to reflect on your feelings and anxieties in relation to your own development and progression and identify how these might have influenced your learning. The essay should be written in the first person to keep it centred on 'you'.

As the essay develops, draw from your evidence to cite and reflect on examples to support your claims. Make good use of the appendices but make sure that you don't rely on them to replace your reflections within the essay.

So, for example, it wouldn't be explicit enough to say in support of learning outcome 1, 'I can perform an assessment (see Appendix 2)'.

Compare that with this actual example: 'The elderly gentleman assessed in Appendix 2 had a gradual, insidious and worsening 3 year history of hip pain. He complained of morning stiffness, pain on walking and difficulty with functional activities. He was avoiding weight bearing and extension of the affected hip, giving me a diagnostic tip that the problem was in the hip joint. After clearing the spine, assessment of passive movements enabled me to quickly ascertain a hip capsular pattern of most limitation in internal rotation, abduction and then flexion; with hard end feels and reproduction of his pain.'

Ensure that you reflect on a range of evidence to support your claims – one example isn't usually enough and you may need to provide some additional brief case reports, for instance, to provide additional evidence. As a guide, three or four short examples usually give a good spread to provide a sound demonstration that you have met each learning outcome. And they need to be succinct to keep within the word count.

The word count for the essay is 3,000 (+10%) words. This won't include any appendices or references you might add in a list at the end of the essay, although for this reflective essay, there isn't the expectation of a vast array of references, as the support is provided more by the evidence you have produced.

As mentioned above, the criteria for marking your essay are given on page 35.

Before you submit your work, please check your reflective style of writing, grammar and spelling.

As well as providing a reflective essay you will need to provide a Personal Development Plan and the guidelines for that are provided below.

Guidelines for your Personal Development Plan

Your personal development plan will enable you to look forwards and to focus your learning for the future. Your professional development portfolio will have enabled you to build up an overview of your strengths and weaknesses in each of the intellectual, psychosocial, politic-economic, professional and ideological domains, some of which will be more relevant to your situation than others.

With consideration for your clinical or work setting, and drawing from your portfolio, make an action plan to help you to focus on the skills you need to gain.

Your action plan should be:

- Specific in its objectives
- Measurable so that you know when you have achieved your goals
- Negotiated with, and agreed by, the people who are necessary to make it work
- Realistic and achievable within existing or available resources

- Time-specific to provide a definite end point. Three years is appropriate for a plan of this nature.

Your plan should reflect personal, organisational and professional development needs. You should also identify areas where you will need assistance, for example in funding or mentorship. Identify processes and people that might assist you in achieving your goals and involve those people in your plan at an early stage.

The assessment of your personal development plan is included in the criteria for marking the portfolio reflective essay, as shown on the following page.
