

Turn Your Clinical Expertise into Inspiring Teaching

Are you passionate about musculoskeletal medicine and keen to help shape the next generation of clinicians?

The Society of Musculoskeletal Medicine (SOMM) is seeking enthusiastic clinicians to join our prestigious Teaching Fellowship Programme; a fully supported pathway into teaching that allows you to develop your educational skills alongside our experienced faculty.

Accredited by Queen Margaret University, Edinburgh, the Fellowship carries 20 Master's Level (Level 7) credits and provides an exciting opportunity to become part of the SOMM teaching community.

Why Apply?

- Develop your teaching skills with expert mentorship
- Gain 20 Master's Level credits
- Travel and accommodation fully funded during Fellowship training
- Attend SOMM's annual Teaching Study Day
- Join a friendly, supportive and highly respected teaching team
- Opportunity to become a SOMM Teaching Fellow on successful completion, with an excellent teaching day rate

What's Involved?

- Participate in teaching on three SOMM Foundation and/or Injection Therapy modules
- Work alongside experienced Teaching Fellows and Module Co-ordinators
- Build a portfolio demonstrating your teaching practice
- Complete a critical literature review and viva assessment
- Approximately 200 hours of study and practical experience over 12-18 months

Fellowship Fee

£750

How to Apply

- A brief CV, including any previous teaching experience
- A supporting statement (approximately 500 words) outlining what you could bring to SOMM as a future Teaching Fellow
- The name of a SOMM Teaching Fellow who can act as a referee
- A copy of your current SOMM membership certificate
